

Ng Tzer Tzun
Head Chef, The Sukhothai Shanghai

“Food is what binds people together. Cooking a good meal with enthusiasm and passion is the best way to express the belief of mine.”

Ng Tzer Tzun Ng brings over a decade of culinary experience to his role as Head Chef of The Sukhothai Shanghai. As Head Chef, Tzer Tzun duties are not limited to management tasks. His work involves initiate the creation of new menus and quality control, and he plays the vital role of heading a team of talented chefs to storm up a satisfying culinary feast for the discerning palates.

Originally from Malaysia, Chef Ng deep appreciation for food started when he was 10 years of age helping out his mum in the kitchen that would fuel his lifelong passion for cooking.

Tzer Tzun was a young chef when he ventured out of his home ground and took up his first job in Singapore at the Hard Rock Café. Gaining upward mobility with his experience, Chef Ng joined Peninsula Excelsior Hotel in Singapore in 2011 when he was appointed Sous Chef, working closely with the Executive Chef overseeing the daily operation of the main kitchen, buffet menus, banquet events and daily specials.

After spending seven years honing his culinary skills in Singapore, he decided to uproot himself by embarking on hotel's pre-opening experience with the Jingan Shangri-La, Shanghai and then Shangri-La at the Fort Manila, Philippines. As the Chef de Cuisine for Asian culinary operations, Chef Ng was responsible conceptualising a comprehensive list of Asian dishes from Southeast Asian to Indian and Japanese. He was also put in charge of setting up and organising the kitchen, leading an efficient team of chefs and crew, and creating five-star gourmet experience.

Apart from cooking and savouring cuisines from around the world, Chef Ng enjoys spending his free time at the local markets to check-out new products that inspire him in creating new dishes for the restaurant. He also loves engaging in water sports, and is a certified PADI Advanced Open Water Diver.
